

John Gardner
Department of Economics
University of Mississippi

Contact information

jrgardne@olemiss.edu

jrgcmu.github.io

662 915 7291

366 Holman Hall

P.O. Box 1848

University, MS 38677-01848

Employment

2014-Present: Assistant Professor, Department of Economics, University of Mississippi

Education

Ph.D., Economics and Public Policy, Carnegie Mellon University, 2014

M.S., Economics, Carnegie Mellon University, 2009

B.A., Economics and Political Science, summa cum laude, University of Colorado, Boulder, 2004

Research

Publications

"Migration and Wages: New Evidence from the African American Great Migration." 2016. IZA Journal of Migration 5 (1).

Working papers

"A Simple Approximation to the Average Effect of the Treatment on the Treated in Panel Settings with Selective Enrollment"

"City-Specific Racial Differences in the Labor Supply of Women." With Natalia Kolesnikova

"Identification and Estimation of Average Causal Effects when Treatment Status is Ignorable within Unobserved Strata"

"If I Leave Here Tomorrow: An Option View of Migration when Labor Market Quality Declines." With Josh Hendrickson

"Roy-Model Bounds on Differential Treatment Effects"

"Intergenerational Altruism in the Migration Decision Calculus: Evidence from the Great Migration"

Conference presentations

"Nonparametric Estimation of Average Causal Effects when Treatment Status is Ignorable within Unobserved Strata." Southern Economics Association Conference. Washington, DC. 2016.

"Intergenerational Altruism in the Migration Decision Calculus: Evidence from the Great Migration." Southern Economics Association Conference. New Orleans, LA. 2015.

"Roy-Model Bounds on Group Differences in Treatment Effects: Theory with an Application to the Great Migration." Western Economics Association. Honolulu, HI, 2015.

"The Great Migration and Wages in the Northern United States." Southern Economics Association. Tampa, FL, 2013.

"Alliterative Names and Election Outcomes." Midwest Political Science Association. Chicago, IL, 2010.

“Deterrence Externalities and Racial Bias in Law Enforcement.” Western Economics Association. Portland, OR, 2010.

“Diversity and Trust among Lifelong Residents: An Empirical Test of Constrict Theory,” Association for Public Policy and Management. Washington, D.C., 2009.

Teaching

Instructor

Applied Economics (Undergraduate), Ph.D. Microeconomics (Guest lecturer, Doctoral), Economic Principles of Policy Analysis (Masters), Principles of Economics (Undergraduate), Regression Analysis (Undergraduate), Microeconomic Research Methods (Doctoral), Behavioral Economics (Undergraduate)

Teaching assistant

Labor Economics (Masters), Strategic Corporate Management (MBA), Trade and Investment Strategy (MBA), Program Evaluation (Masters), Principles of Economics (Undergraduate), Law and Economics (Undergraduate/Masters), Econometric Theory and Methods II (Doctoral), Ph.D. Microeconomics (Doctoral), Applied Econometrics II (Masters), Economic Analysis (Masters)

Grants

College of Liberal Arts Summer Research Grant, University of Mississippi, 2015-2016

Graduate Student Small Project Help Research Grant, Carnegie Mellon University, 2011

References

Lowell Taylor

H. John Heinz III Professor of Economics

Heinz College

Carnegie Mellon University

412 268 3278

lt20@andrew.cmu.edu

Robert A. Miller

Professor of Economics and Strategy

Tepper School of Business

Carnegie Mellon University

412 268 3701

ramiller@andrew.cmu.edu

George-Levi Gayle

Associate Professor of Economics

Department of Economics

Washington University in St. Louis

314 935 7472

ggayle@wustl.edu

Brian Kovak

Assistant Professor of Economics and Public Policy

Heinz College

Carnegie Mellon University

412 268 5223
bkovak@cmu.edu

Karen Clay
Associate Professor of Economics and Public Policy
Heinz College
Carnegie Mellon University
412 268 4197
kclay@andrew.cmu.edu